“It is breakfast time!” Dad called.

Dad excitedly held up the newspaper article about the closing of the town’s oldest railway line. The last train was leaving at 10 a.m. that morning.

Mum brought out their breakfast and reminded the Bunny siblings to hurry.

“We will be watching the last train leave!” Mum said.

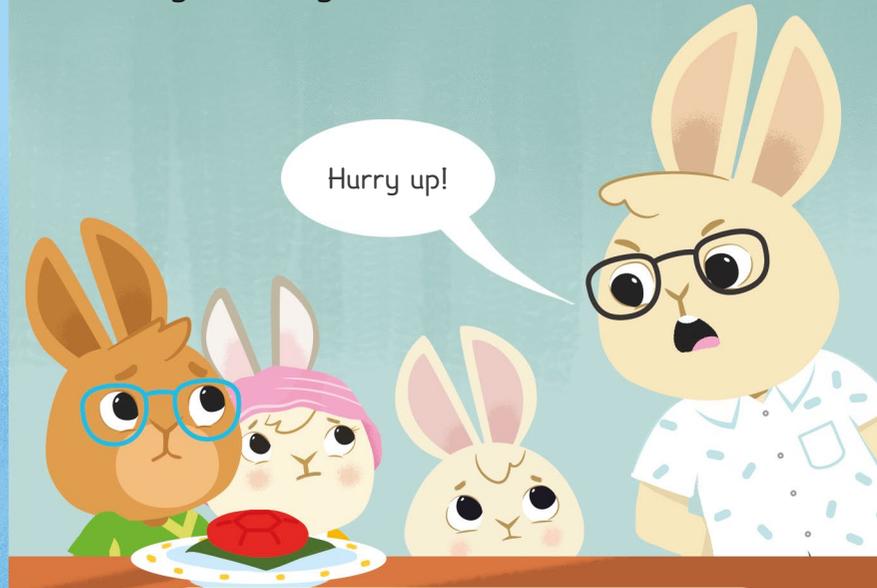

Big Brother reached for the last piece of kueh. With a wave of his hand, Little Brother stopped him and said, “I want—”

Before Little Brother could finish speaking, Becky Bunny cut in, “I want it too.”

“I’m the oldest and biggest. I need more food,” Big Brother reasoned.

“Don’t quarrel over the last piece,” Dad said impatiently. “Share it or decide who can have it. Then, get changed.”

LET'S REFLECT

The Bunny siblings quarrelled over the last piece of kueh.

 What do you think they should do?

Mum took out the shirts that she had specially painted for the Bunny family. She wanted everyone to wear them on this special day.

“I don’t like this. I want to wear another shirt,” Big Brother sulked.

He did not like wearing the same clothes as his family.

However, Becky Bunny said, “It looks nice. Mum made it for us. Let’s wear it together.”

Seeing Becky Bunny and Little Brother change into their painted shirts, Big Brother changed too.

The Bunny family then took the bus to the train station. “We should arrive in time,” Dad said while looking at his watch.

On the bus, the Bunny siblings quarrelled again. All of them wanted to sit next to Mum.

Becky Bunny decided to let Big Brother and Little Brother sit beside Mum while she sat beside Dad.

LET'S REFLECT

Becky Bunny showed love to her brothers, and she was happy to let them sit together with Mum.

♥ What are the ways we can show love to our family members?

The bus suddenly stopped.

Dad held on to Becky Bunny
while Big Brother and Little Brother held on to Mum.

Oh no! A fallen tree!
The roads were now blocked.

“Will we be late?” asked
Becky Bunny.

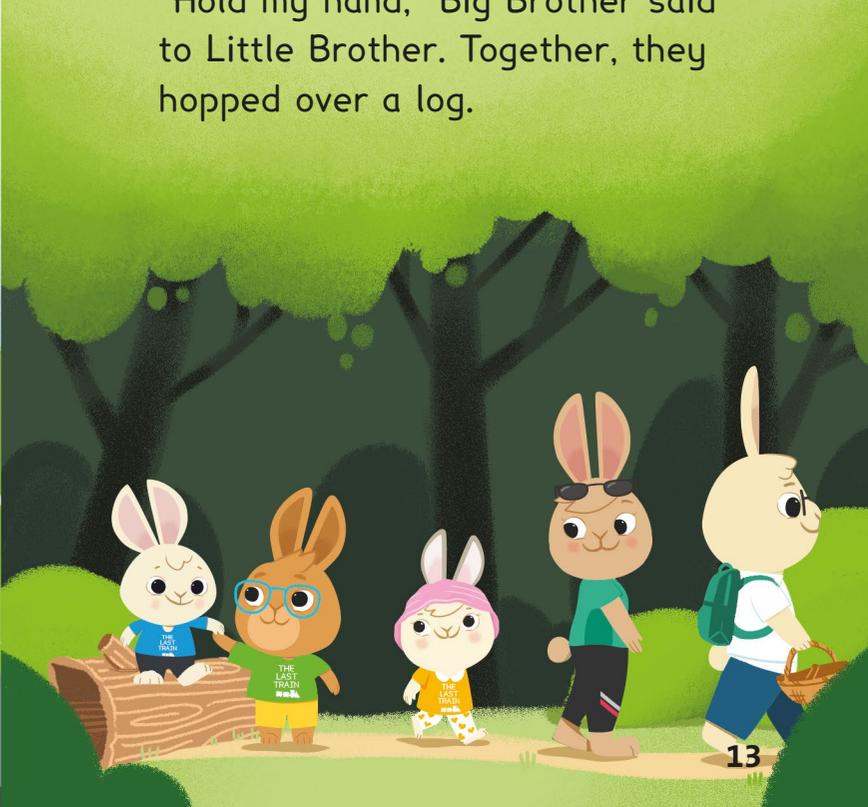

Dad looked around. "We are not far from the train station. Let us walk there. Follow me!" Dad said as he picked up their things.

The Bunny family got off the bus and followed Dad.

Hopping along a narrow path through the nature park, the Bunny family tried their best to be quick. The train was about to leave!

"Hold my hand," Big Brother said to Little Brother. Together, they hopped over a log.

Choo-choo! The train horn sounded.

“Let’s go! We’re almost there!”

Becky Bunny squealed.

“We can make it!” Dad said excitedly.

The Bunny family emerged from the bushes just in time!

The train was starting off on the tracks. A huge crowd had gathered to say goodbye!

The Bunny family scrambled to take a ‘selfie’ just as the train was leaving.

LET’S REFLECT

The Bunny family showed love by helping and encouraging one another.

♥ What are some encouraging words you can say to show love to your family?

The station was filled with loud cheers and applause as the train left for the last time.

“I’m glad we were able to see the train one last time,” Little Brother said.

“Catching this last train is a special family moment,” Dad shared.

“Why is it special?” Becky Bunny asked.

Dad paused.

He shared, “Grandpa and Grandma brought me here on many weekends when I was young.”

“I enjoyed my time with my parents. I felt their love when they waited patiently while I watched the trains,” Dad recalled.

It's okay, Dad. You just wanted all of us to be on time.

I'm sorry for being impatient during breakfast today.

Big Brother thought about what happened that morning too. He realised he had been unkind to Mum.

“Mum, I am sorry for what happened this morning. You spent time making these shirts for us. I love you, Mum!” Big Brother said.

LET'S REFLECT

Dad and Big Brother showed respect when they apologised for being impatient and unkind.

 Do you apologise for doing or saying hurtful things?

“Thank you for wearing the shirt with us,” said Mum to Big Brother.

“Dad and Mum, thank you for bringing all of us to see the last train today!” Becky Bunny chimed in.

Everyone smiled.

The Bunny family then looked at the photos they took that day. Mum took out some biscuits to share.

“Thank you for bringing snacks for us, Mum!” said Little Brother.

LET'S REFLECT

Do you thank your family members for what they do?

The Bunny family laughed at all the funny poses they made.

“I am so happy we shared these family moments today,” Mum said.

There was one biscuit left.

The Bunny children looked at one another. Who should have it?

Then Becky Bunny said, “The last train was a shared family moment. This last piece can be a shared family moment too.”

Becky Bunny broke the biscuit and gave everyone a piece.

“This is our shared family moment!” chuckled Little Brother.

It was a day to remember.

LET'S REFLECT

Will you share your favourite snack or toys with your family members? Why?

FROM ADULT TO CHILD

Respect

Showing respect means being patient and kind to both young and old.

Some ways of showing respect are listening when your family members are talking, waiting for your turn to speak, or giving your siblings a chance to be included in your play.

Love

Showing love means using actions to express how we feel.

Some ways of showing love are spending time together as a family, saying kind words, giving presents and hugs or helping around the house.

Becky Bunny and her family are excited to see the old train leave their city for the last time. As they prepare to capture this historic moment, they discover the family values of love and respect.
